SNOW POEMS 2013

Santa Fe, New Mexico

A community art project that explores our city as a living book

As snow falls, poems written by the people of Santa Fe surface on windows throughout the city. These poems were written in free Snow Poems workshops, in schools, and culled from open submissions on our website. We welcome you to wander the city by foot, bicycle and/or car, and enjoy. The poems will be washed away as light begins to signal spring at the end of February.

Night of Illumination

Friday, Feb. 22, 6-8pm
Santa Fe Community Gallery
201 W Marcy St.

closing ceremony with walking tours, refreshments and Snow Poems Hear Here Choir with Molly Sturges

www.snowpoemsproject.com

Resounding applause for Arianna Sullivan, Chelsey Alden, Hannah Mabel, Sharifa Lookman, Sofia Howard who got the poems up!

Cut+Paste Society, founded by Edie Tsong, is a creative community of women artists and writers in the Santa Fe area. Snow Poems is our first collaborative project. Thank you to participating members, especially: Julie Ruth, Elizabeth Lende, Kirsten Mundt, Katie Macaulay, Aline Brandauer.

Santa Fe Art Institute promotes and presents art as a positive social force through residencies, lectures, studio workshops, exhibitions, community art actions, and educational outreach for adults and young people. www.sfaí.org
